Project Examples

- Trailheads or Kiosks. Can include:

- Name of the trail and its location
- Emergency contact information
- Trails maps
- Rules, regulations and trail use icons
- Warnings, cautions and trail classification information (if applicable)
- Bulletin board to inform trail users of major events happening in the community
- Information about the trail's ecology and environment, with tips to minimize environmental impacts
- Historical information or other interpretive information to enhance user experience

- Regulatory, Warning, Safety and Cautionary signage

- Regulatory and warning signs should be placed along the trail at appropriate locations
- Custom cautionary signage should be created when there is a hazard, in order to reduce risk

- Wayfinding signage

- Trans Canada Trail provides directional arrows and single logo aluminum wayfinders to registered trail operators, free of charge
- Additional or custom signs may be required to ensure safe travel. These can include multi-logo wayfinders and custom arrows

- Kilometre markers

- Kilometre markers can significantly enhance the trail experience, provide information on tracking distance, and can be used in case of emergency to confirm a trail user's location

- Directional signage

- Directional signs provide information to trail users about the location of amenities along the trail including parking, access points, water and washroom facilities

- Interpretive signage
 - Interpretive signs are intended to educate trail users through the use of inclined story boards. The signage can include information on local flora, fauna and history
- Surface markings and striping
 - Surface markings should not replace signage, since they are less visible and can be obscured depending on weather conditions
 - These markings are often used to indicate permitted trail uses, speed limits, crossings and the direction of travel
- Donor recognition signage
 - Donor recognition signage provides acknowledgement to those who made a significant financial contribution to a trail project
- Art or other creative structures
 - Art on the trail is a welcome addition and also enhances the experience. Sculptures, murals and other forms of art can be used in conjunction with signage or as a stand-alone piece
